Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Fighting Indians in the 7th United States Cavalry: Custer's Favorite Regiment These chronicles of stirring events were written since my discharge from the Seventh United States Cavalry, with both legs paralyzed, due to injuries received at the time of the final surrender. This regiment was made famous by that intrepid Commander, General George A. Custer, and by the efficient service of its units which hastened the end of Indian hostilities in the Great Northwest. Sitting Bull was the most resourceful War Chief ever known, at the time of the Custer Massacre he led the largest and best equipped force of Indian Warriors that ever attacked United States soldiers The object of the uprising was to gain, and hold absolute possession of the lands of their ancestors, for themselves, for their children and their children's children, for all time. These hostiles, five thousand strong, were attacked by a few hundred soldiers led by Custer, June 25th, 1876. and Custer and his men were all killed. Not one was spared. This Massacre marked the beginning of the end Uncle Sam met the challenge. Hostiles bands were hunted down, and Sitting Bull was captured. The next year Chief Joseph, realizing that Indians could not by force get or hold possession of their hunting grounds, attempted to lead a general exodus of natives into British America. Joseph had under his command, for the protection of the mass of refugees, a fighting force larger and better armed than were the soldiers under Miles, to whom he surrendered. The careful preparation of copy for this book, taking the reader from the recruiting office at Fort Leavenworth, through the Bad...
