Not illustrated. 1842 Excerpt: .she was allowed to enter, and was successfully passed from one sentinel to another until she reached the cell of the captive. By some awkwardness, or more probably by design, she threw down the small iron lamp, which was suspended from the door-frame, and by means of which the soldier stationed at the entrance, which was always left open, might have a partial view of his charge. The moment they were left in darkness, and whilst the sentinel proceeded to the second gate to light the lamp, she addressed the young man, -- My beloved Eulogio, lose not a moment, throw off your coat, put on my clothes, whilst I bind this handkerchief about your head; take this basket, in which my poor baby is asleep, and fly, fly, for the love of God! You will give the child to an old woman whom you will find waiting at the Bilboa gate. Provided that you and my child are out of all danger, I am ready to suffer death in your place. Speak not a word; every moment is precious. You only lose time by attempting to resist, or refuse, for I have come here with a determination, which neither you nor any one else can change. Farewell! if I escape unharmed, (and I do not think the Regent will shoot me for my love for my husband), we will meet again; if not, Eulogio, think of me when I shall be in the grave, and love...
