Not illustrated. 1808 Excerpt: . majority of nearly 2,000, although the Republican candidates on the State ticket carried the city by almost 6,000 majority. Mr. Pattison entered on his duties on the 1st of January, 1878, and recognizing the fact that he had been elected to reform the office and its methods, he speedily set about his work with a determination to honestly administer affairs. He found the credit of the city impaired, its paper at a discount in the money market, but by adopting a funding plan order was brought out of chaos; and such was the great appreciation of his services by the people that at the expiration of his three-years term he was re-elected by a majority of 13,593 over his contestant, one of the most esteemed citizens and successful merchants of Philadelphia. This was not a triumph of party, but one due to the personal and exceptional ability with which Mr. Pattison had discharged his office, for it was at a time when the Republican candidate for President carried the city by over 20,000 majority. This popularity placed him in 1882 as an available candidate for gubernatorial honors. After a close and vigorous contest in the State Convention he was made the nominee of the Democracy. His party had been for thirty years in a minority in the State, but the campaign was triumphantly successful, and in November of that year he was elected Governor of the Commonwealth by a plurality of 40,202 over his...
