Prince Albert, under straw, yielded two hundred and fifty-seven bushels, and Snow-Ball four hundred bushels per acre. He put the straw four inches deep; planted the rows eighteen inches apart, and twelve inches in the row. Very little rot where covered with straw. C. Fletcher, of Indianapolis, said he had had some under straw. Neshannock thus treated did not rot. Dr. Furnas, of Danville, said he would prepare the ground and thoroughly plant in drills, and when they begin to come through the ground, harrow thoroughly, thus pulverizing the surface soil and killing all weeds and grass that may be starting, and leaving the ground entirely clean. Then the potato comes up ahead of the weeds which are easily killed with the plow, saving all the necessity of using the hoe, and when ready to dig plows each side of the...
